REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

An on-chip signal transforming device comprising a substrate; first and second conductive layers wherein the first layer has a first plurality of inductor disposed in an interleaved manner completely within the first conductive layer and wherein the second layer, which is insulated from the first, has at least one inductor which is DC (direct current) isolated from the first plurality of interleaved inductors; the at least one inductor being formed completely within one or more layers OTHER than the first conductive layer.

The closest related art found was U.S. Patent Number 5,610,433 by Merrill, et al. Merrill, et al, discloses an inductive device formed on a substrate; the device comprising a first conductive coil and a second conductive coil formed on a first insulating surface, said first conductive coil being substantially formed within the boundaries of said second conductive coil; a third conductive coil and a forth conductive coil formed on a second insulating surface, said third conductive coil being substantially formed within the boundaries of said fourth conductive coil. Although, Merrill, et al, illustrates the use of several coils, overall, the structure is a composition having only ONE inductor, which does not offer DC isolation between the interleaved coils.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
